TV Shows

We live in renaissance period of superhero TV shows; Daredevil, Flash, Arrow, Gotham, and Marvel's Agents of S.H.E.L.D. Not all these shows are Mona Lisa's i.e. Gotham and Marvels Agents. Their ideas are very well thought out, they just need a little bit more of compassion from the writers. The Flash, Arrow and Daredevil are something that I would highly recommend to people who aren't into comics. Daredevil is a more of an adult show but that is what is awesome about it, it's the R-rated version of Marvel that we would like to see more of. Arrow is an also a great TV show despite the opera moments, it has amazing comic book references in the series. The Flash is an incredible superhero show that I would love to recommend to people because you can tell that the writers had fun they know their concept of what the want. The show also introduces time-travel, multiverse in subtle fashion.

The shows on TV about superheroes are an amazing but the cinematic universes in the shows have huge effects on the shows like Marvel's Agents. With the DC and Marvel movies coming out I just hope that the shows keep coming.

My TV Show List

1. The Flash
2. Daredevil
3. Arrow
4. Marvel's Agents
5. Gotham

Superhero Movies

The age superhero movie is upon us with Marvel's Avengers and DC's Justice League. Between Marvel and DC jostling for position with their respective five-year plans, and Warner/Fox/Sony each trying to cash in on the heroes they currently own the rights to, there's no shortage of choices. That being so, they can't all be winners. Sure, up until now Marvel has yet to have a true flop at the box office, while DC will always have Batman and Superman to fill seats. But with the veritable boatload of comic book adaptations on the docket, some of them are bound to fail.

That being so, there are a select few that everyone's eyes are fixed on. It's a mixed bag of reboots, sequels, and brand new heroes, doling out something for everybody. We don't know for sure whether any of these will be good or bad, but what we do know is that people are looking forward to the release of them nonetheless.

Upcoming movies: Marvel's Civil War & DC's Batman vs. Superman

Animated Superheroes

Warner Bros. recently announced a new wave of animated films and shorts based on DC superheroes, and it brings to mind the long history of cartoons based on comic book characters both from DC and across the comic's landscape. Whether you're a Marvel fan, a DC fan, or just a fan of comics and cartoons, chances are there's something off the air that was only recently on that you're missing in a big way.

This is a big field of wonderful animated superheroes TV shows. I will discuss the best-animated superhero show out there, Batman: The Animated Series (1992–1995) had a the many awesome thing like, the music, the pseudo-thirties look, and the voice acting of Kevin Conroy and Mark Hamill. The also introduced the female villain Harley Quinn who now and days is associated with the famous villain Joker, and now making a debut in the DC's Suicide Squad next November.
